What is IAAOC?

IAAOC
International Association of Addictions
Offender
Counselors

The International Association of Addictions and Offender Counselors is an organization of professional substance abuse/addictions counselors, corrections counselors, students and counselor educators who are concerned with improving the lives of individuals exhibiting addictive and/or criminal behaviors.

Our mission is to provide leadership in and advancement of the professions of addictions and offender counseling.

Membership in IAAOC includes professionals from a variety of disciplines including substance abuse/addictions counselors, public offender rehabilitation, and mental health counselors. IAAOC members work with clients in such areas as alcohol and other drug abuse and addiction (including family issues related to addictions), gambling, maladaptive sexual behaviors, vocational rehabilitation, and adult and juvenile offender rehabilitation.

Who Joins IAAOC?

Graduate students and professionals with an interest in the rapidly growing fields of addictions or public offender counseling join IAAOC. Members hold positions in mental health agencies, correctional facilities, university settings, and public and private offender and addiction treatment programs.

Benefits of Joining IAAOC

- Improved Professional Standing is bestowed on counselors and graduate students who belong to specialized organizations, including national scholarships, grants, and awards. These include Awards for the Outstanding IAAOC Practitioner, Outstanding Graduate Level Program, the Outstanding Addictions and Offender Counselor Educator Award, Graduate Student Scholarship to support attendance at ACA Conference, and a Research Grant for Professional/Regular members of IAAOC.
- The IAAOC Newsletter is published four times a year online (www.iaaoc.org) and addresses critical issues related to addiction and public offender counseling. The newsletter keeps members abreast of training opportunities, provides articles on timely topics, and reviews books of current interest.
- The Journal of Addictions and Offender Counseling publishes reports of research in areas of addictions and public offender counseling, as well as other articles of interest. Members receive journals bi-annually. All members receive electronic access to the
